David H. Bulman Honored At Clarkson

David H. Bulman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Bulman, Moseley Rd., was tapped for membership in Phalanx at the annual Clarkson College of Technology Moving-up Day exercises, May 23. Phalanx is the college's highest recognition society founded in 1928 to recognize student leadership in extracurricular activities.

Bulman is studying civil engineering at Clarkson. He is one of the founders of Triangle fraternity. Next year he will be president of Chi Epsilon, civil engineering honorary and vice president of Tau Beta Pi, also an engineering honorary. He is a member of the Junior class council, the Society for the Advancement of Management, the WNTC staff, campus radio, and the Board of Governors.
